Preparations are about completed for the Democratic rally and basket picnic tomorrow. The committee has been at work today building the speaker's stand and arranging seats for the immense crowd that will be here.

DON'T BELIEVE CONGER STORY.

EUROPE TURNS A DEAF EAR TO US.

United States Has Failed to Get Any Suggestions as to the Advance Upon Pekin Europe is Incredulous and Consequently Slow--English and Americans Fight Together and Take a Fort and Capture Four Guns--The Usual Assertion and Contradiction That the Ministers Were Safe on July Seventh.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Washington, July 23.—The replies received by the State department from the United States ambassadors in Europe are very inconclusive regarding the request of the United States for suggestions as to means of expediting an allied movement upon Pekin. It was learned this morning on the best of authority that not one European nation regards the Conger dispatch as genuine. Thus far no desire has been shown by them to comply with the hope of the United States that the forward movement be no longer delayed. Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai does not believe the dispatch genuine, and has told the State department that it is an old message.

The text of a decree given by Minister Wu to the State department was given out this morning. It declares that the Chinese government was protecting the legations July 17, and that the missionaries are the cause of the present troubles.

It is announced semi-officially from Yokohama that the Japanese will advance on Pekin August 5, probably from San Hai Kwan, while the other allies will move simultaneously from Tien-Tsin.

The State department has received a dispatch from Goodnow, consul at Shanghai, saying that Prince Tuan wires that officer Trunglyman saw all the ministers July 18, that none were injured and that no attack at that time was being made.

AMERICANS AND BRITISH CAPTURE GUNS.

Cheefoo, July 23.—By a brilliant dash against a large force of Chinese, a body of American and English troops led by Major Waller this morning captured a fort on the northwest of the city of Tien-Tsin. The Chinese were routed after losing heavily. The Yankees and their British comrades captured four four inch rifled cannon, two nine-pounders and several smaller guns, with a large quantity of ammunition. Their object was to seize these guns, which had greatly annoyed the allies at Tien-Tsin.

MORE FAIRY TALES VIA PARIS.

Paris, July 23 —The foreign office has received information from Chinese sources, upon which certain reliance can be placed, that the foreign ministers at Pekin were not massacred July 7. The ministers were attacked and the legations burned, but the foreigners succeeded in crossing the city to Prince Ching's palace, which was then barricaded, and the Europeans were holding their own when the news left July 9.

It is said that the powers are planning a dash to Pekin. The movement is considered feasible as no hostile Chinese are left in the vicinity of Tien-Tsin.

At St. Petersburg it is said that the advance will begin as soon as the Russian general, Tinevitch, who is reported from Vladivostock to be proceeding to the scene of hostilities with an army corp and a complete artillery brigade, arrives at Tien-Tsin.

AGITATION SPREADING.

Paris, July 23—The French consul at Chingkiang cables the foreign office that the povinces of Szuchuzn are fairly quiet except in the northhest where Christians have been massacred. A dispatch from Hankow says the agitation is spreading to the provinces of Honai.

SOLDIERS WANT TO INSULT FOREI GN ERS.

Hupeh, July 23—The regular Chinese soldiers drilled by European officers are manifesting a disposition to insult foreigners but so far the authorities have been able to keep them under control.

CHINESE AND BRITISH FIGHT.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—Two encounters are reported as having taken place between the British and the Chinese forces near Wei-Hai-Wei. It is reported that the latter were repulsed after a stubborn fight.

LOVING CUP FOR JUDGE BOYD.

His Retirement from the Department of Justice Deeply Regretted.

Judge James E. Boyd, who has just retired from the Department of Justice to become Federal judge of this district, was Saturday presented with a magnificent silver loving cup by his friends in the department. In speaking of the occurrence, the Washington correspondent of the Raleigh Post says:

Colonel Boyd's genial disposition and kindness have made a friend of every employe of the department. The presentation took place in the office of the Attorney General, in the presence of more than a hundred clerks.

The cup is one of the finest that could be purchased, and bears this inscription:

"To Hon. James E. Boyd. Presented by his associates of the Department of Justice. A testimonial of esteem on the occasion of his retirement from the office of the assistant attorney general of the United States to accept the office of United States District judge of the Western District of North Carolina, to which he was appointed by President McKinley July 1, 1900."

C O. L. Cooper, private secretary to the attorney general, made the presentation. He said:

"Colonel Boyd: Gathered about you this morning are many of your friends in the Department of Justice, with whom you have been associated for several years. We have met here to congratulate you upon your promotion and elevation to the high office of United States district judge for the Western District of North Carolina and at the same time to express our sincere regret that we have to separate. We have all appreciated, and shall ever remember, your affability uniform frankness, and wish for you and yours much happiness and success. We know, Colonel, that you will grace the exalted position of Federal judge with honor and dignity as you have the position of assistant attorney general of the United States, from which you have just retired. As an evidence of our esteem I have the pleasure on behalf of those who are present and some who could not be here, in presenting you this loving cup, emblematic as it is of love and friendship."

Judge Boyd made an appropriate reply, expressing his deep regret at parting from his associates, who had always treated him so courteously.

A NEW PROFESSOR OF HISTORY.

Prof. Smith Comes to the State Normal and Industrial College.

Professor W. C. Smith has accepted the position of professor of history at the State Normal and Industrial College, Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson having resigned that position to become lady principal of Greensboro Female College.

Mr. Smith and his wife, nee Miss Allen, are Greensboro people, and have many friends here who will be glad for them to settle permanently in Greensboro.

Professor Smith is the son of Professor Samuel C. Smith, for many years the principal of Lindsay Street Graded School. He graduated at the State University in 1896 with such an honorable record that he was immediately employed by his alma mater, and from that time until last February, when he resigned his position, he had been a member of the faculty of the University, serving first in the capacity of assistant professor of pedagogy and history, and afterwards as instructor in English and assistant in history.

Professor Smith attended the Harvard Summer School in 1897. He is regarded by those who know him as an exceptionally strong man, and the State Normal and Industrial College is to be congratulated upon securing his services.

DEATH OE MR. WOODROFFE.

Mr. Thomas Woodroffe, Sr., who had been critically ill for some time, died at his home in Mt. Airy yesterday afternoon. Owing to the serious nature of his illness and his advanced age, his death was not unexpected. He leaves a wife and four children—three sons and a daughter.

Mr. Woodroffe was 71 years old and was a native of England. He came to America in 1872 and settled in Lynchburg, Va. Later he resided in Richmond and Albemarle county, coming to Greensboro 12 or 15 years ago.

He was a careful and successful business man and was an important factor in the industrial life and activity of the community. He was a contractor and builder and for many years conducted an extensive lumber manufacturing business. A year or more ago he leased the Mt. Airy granite quarries, moving with his family to that place.

Both as a man and a citizen, Mr. Woodroffe held the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. He was kind, considerate and conscientious, faithful in the performance of duty and ever ready to do an act of charity. He was a communicant of the Episcopal Church.

The remains arrived today on the noon train from Mt. Airy, accompanied by the family and several friends. The body was carried to St. Andrew's Episcopal church, where the funeral service was conducted by Rev. Horace Weeks Jones, after which the interment was made in Greene Hill cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. J. M. Odell, R. R. King, R. P. Gray, W. E. Schenck, W. T. Stewart and W. E. Stone.

A FEW PLAIN WORDS.

Only Lack of Work and Fidelity Can Defeat the Democratic Ticket this Year.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

The last opportunity that will ever be presented to the people of North Carolina to settle the race question in politics will be presented within two weeks. It is also the first opportunity. For 32 years we have borne the threatening burdens, and twice in that time have gone to the ground under its weight, only to rise through superhuman energy; but never, till this, have we dared to ask the people if they have had enough of negro rule. Now if the Democratic party should be beaten on the amendment and in the county and State, it could never be asked again to go to the people with a plan to suppress the ignorant negro vote. The sweeping victory given the party in 1898 commissioned that party to offer this amendment as a final effort to adjust the suffrage. The Democratic party cannot again, if defeated, offer an amendment of this kind to the people for yeara, if ever. The Republican party has no desire to do so and will not do so; for, while the Republicans pretended to favor white supremacy, they spend most of the time in getting "their niggers," as they call them, registered and their votes in the ballot box.

What are the conditions in our county? We have a clear and undisputed majority of Democrats on the registration books, and nothing but lack of work and lack of fidelity to our ticket can keep us from winning. Shall we have that work and that fidelity? I sincerely think so. Would we not feel like a set of "tarnal" fools on the 3rd of August if we should find that in disputing over "how to sell liquor in Greensboro" we had lost sight of the momentous qnestion of "White Supremacy," the paramount issue this year everywhere in North Carolina, and had lost the county and possibly the State and Legislature, or one branch of it, and thus put ourselves on record as preferring that blatant demagogue and unprincipled political scoundrel Marion Butler, to get back to the United States Senate.

The dispensary may be a bad thing, but as between it and the saloons it would be infinitely worse for Guilford to go Republican and put in the revenue ring with negro rule. The saloon may be much less desirable than the dispensary, but white rule is not to be named in the same breath with either. Let us quit our foolishness and go in to win. It is our last chance to end this matter.

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY GROWS.

REGISTBATION SHOWS STATE SAFE.

Raleigh Gained 400 White Votes and Lost 200 Negro Votes—Fusion Tickets Not Yet Arranged, the Leaders Being Unable to Decide What to do—Butler Said to be Mortgaging His Property for Funds—The Texas Importation.

Special Correspondence of the Telegram.

Raleigh, July 23—The news as to the registration in the State, so far as received, is all that the Democrats could desire. As Secretary Pearsall said this morning "It doubles our majority." Raleigh gains 400 white votes, and loses 200 negro votes. Only 36 negroes registered in New Hanover. Senator Butler, it seems, had planned to have a large number of arrests of registrars made, but so far as can be learned only one was made, that being at Wallace.

It is not the opinion among the Democratic leaders that the Fusionists have as yet had their tickets printed. They have no doubt agreed on fusion, but are keeping it an absolute secret. Some persons say they have taken down Adams; others say that they have taken down Cy. Thompson. The fact is the Republicans and Populists were in a hard way from the very start. If they had put up a joint ticket at the beginning with Adams at its head, a lot of Populists would have "jumped the game," while on the other hand had they put up Thompson there are plenty of Republicans in Piedmont and Western North Carolina who would have had nothing to do with him. So no doubt the fusionists, in their despair, think they can do no better than to get out some kind of a joint ticket and only let it be known election day; saying in effect to their voters, "Here is the best we could do." They certainly have nothing to lose by it.

Senator Butler left here Saturday morning for Clinton, to "reddish"—that is what the darkies say when they mean "register." The Senator was a picture of gloom as he took his departure. He has been at work feverishly at his headquarters here. J. C. L. Harris tells me that he hears Butler has thrown himself into the campaign with such zeal that he has mortgaged his property to aid in raising funds.

Chairman Simmons says he is determined that revenue officers shall not control this State's affairs if he can help it. He wrote Saturday to every county chairman and also to active Democrats in all sections, requesting them to keep close watch upon Federal office-holders and whenever one of the latter is guilty of offensive partisanship or in unduly action in connection with the election to have an affidavit made of the facts by a person who can speak of his own knowledge, and send the same to him. Upon the receipt of such affidavits Mr. Simmons will lay them before the president of the civil service commission and ask for action. He says the conduct of these Federal office-holders in North Carolina is a high-handed outrage, not to be submitted to, and that he indends that men who engage in this prostitution of their office shall be properly dealt with and that the law will be invoked to see that they are properly dealt with. He declares the conduct of Federal officials during this campaign to be a flagrant violation of the civil service laws as well as an outrage upon the rights of the people of this State, and he thinks it due the people of North Carolina that the president and the civil service commission should be informed of the infamous attempt to interfere with popular rights.

Populist headquarters was a lively place today. A lot of the brethren came in, among them Harry Tracy, of Tulia, Texas, and Stump Ashby, of Fort Worth, Texas. Senator Butler came on an afternoon train. His dear friend, A. E. Holton, came in also and there was a Fusion love feast in which Dr. "Fox" Person, of Wayne, John E. Fowler, of Sampson, J. M. Mewborne and others of the elect participated. A Populist said there were also Populists here from Oregon and Massachusetts, but that the outfit was merely "passing through." The Texas men, big-hatted and "woolly" looked exactly like the characters in Hoyt's comedy, "A Texas Steer."

The terrible drout was ended this evening by a copious rainfall, which, however, came too late to save a great deal of the corn. It was not the drought which did the damage so much as the heat, which blazed so pitiless day after day. There were prayers for rain in hundreds of churches this morning and tonight thanks for the blessing vouchsafed. The August State crop report will no doubt tell a sad story, and so with the government crow and weather report Tuesday morning.

The suits against the persons who made affidavits against election registrars are for false process.

ZACKARY BELL MOVED ON.

He Was Not Allowed to Linger in Albemarle or Stanly County.

Special to the Charlotte Observer.

Albermarle, July 21.—One Zachary Bell, of Davidson county, came into town yesterday for the purpose, it is said, of organizing a labor union. The Mill News, of Charlotte, has just exposed a scheme in which it says these unions so called are being prostituted and used as anti-amendment clubs. In the exposure Mr. Bell is named as one of the organizers, a man of very unsavory reputation and strongly anti-amendment. Knowing these things, a number of the citizens of the town and the operatives of the mill concluded that it was the best thing for Mr. Bell's health that he move on. So last night a crowd waited on him and escorted him beyond the limits of the county with the parting injunction not to return to do his dirty work. No violence was offered him and everything was peaceable and in order. The people of Stanly county suffered one imported emmissary to come here and work against the amendment some time ago, but they are now thoroughly aroused and feel that they are able to vote their convictions without outside counsel or interference.

THE GAUNTLET THROWN DOWN.

THE REPUBLICANS CHALLENGED.

Elder Bodenheimer Calls on the Opponents of the Amendment to Prove Their Faith in Their Assertions—Willing to Forfeit $1,000 if Any White Man is Disfranchised.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

While the constitutional amendment is being submitted to the voters of North Carolina for ratification or rejection at the ballot box on August 2nd, and whereas the Republican and Populist leaders have, do, and will affirm, until sundown on August 2nd that the said constitutional amendment, if adopted or ratified, will disfranchise all the "poor, illiterate white men of North Carolina who cannot read and write any part of the constitution in the English language," be it known, therefore, to Senator Pritchard, Judge Adams, Dr. Cy. Thompson and chairman Holton, the progenitors and propagators of said affirmation, that I am authorized to say to those gentlemen that the Democratic party of North Carolina does most solemnly and emphatically deny and denounce said affirmation and does as solemnly and emphatically declare that said amendment, if adopted by the voters of North Carolina, will not now, nor hereafter, disfranchise any native born white man now living, who registers at any time between now and 1908 according to the provisions set forth in said constitutional amendment.

In testimony of the truth of this assertion, and the sincerity of those who say it, a justified bond for the sum of $1,000 to each of the four aforesaid progenitors will be given on the following conditions: That should said constitutional amendment disfranchise one native born white man, who registers according to law, between the day of its ratification, and 1908, on account of his inability to read and write any clause of the constitution, then said bondsmen shall forfeit and pay the said sum of $1,000 to the aforesaid persons, provided the aforesaid persons will execute a like bond to forfeit and pay a like sum to the bondsmen of the first part, provided no native born white man is disfranchised by said amendment on account of his inability to read and write the constitution or any part thereof.

Senator Marion Butler is also included in this proposition. Now I wish to say to those five champions of anti-amendment who have broadly asserted throughout North Carolina that if the constitutional amendment is passed that the poor illiterate white man will be disfranchised with the illiterate negro, that if you do believe what you are trying to make the ignorant believe, you will, every one of you, accept this fair and just proposition, and thereby confirm the doubting Thomasses in your assertions and secure their votes, against the amendment, as well as make $1,000 each clear, in case the constitutional amendment gains the day. And in order to leave you without an excuse for not giving your bonds as before stated, on account of time to come and execute them, I will accept any intelligent man you may select, presenting your credentials of authority to act for you in making such bonds as before stated. You may rest assured that when you present yourselves to me in High Point, N. C., for that purpose, either in person or by proxy, that you will be promptly and politely accommodated, and the necessary justified bonds speedily executed and exchanged.

"Show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works.—James 2: 18.

Hoping to receive your prompt attention, I am ever for white supremacy. L. I. BODENHEIMER.

FAST WORK ON THE WHEEL

How to Become an Expert Bicycle Rider.

LIGHT WHEELS ARE BEST

But Wheels Built for Use on the Track Will Not Stand the Strain of the Rough Road Work—Toe Clips and Ram's Horn Handle Bars.

A man in pulling on a pair of boots secures an added leverage by pulling upon the bootstraps and pushing with the foot. In the same way a man with down-turned bars pulls up on his bars and pushes down on the pedals. But the use of ram's horn bars alone is not sufficient. They should bear such a relation to the pedals and saddle that not an ounce of pressure is wasted. In every racing man's gripsack can be found a piece of string with knots at intervals, which represent the distance between bars and saddle, and saddle and crank-axle. In addition the point of the saddle is placed just so far ahead of an imaginary line extending perpendicularly upward from the crank axle. With this as a guide the racer can fix another wheel to his own measurements if necessary as well as see that his own is just right.

For fast work a light wheel is to be preferred. But the wheels built for use on the track will not stand the rough usage of road work, so the average fast road rider lightens his wheel in as many ways as possible without weakening it. He cuts off the stem of his seat post and handle-bar that project into the frame, leaving just sufficient to clamp them by. He takes off the chain-adjuster on the side away from the sprockets, uses the smallest of bells and lamps, small tires and rims, cuts off every piece of metal in his pedals that is not needed to hold the toe clip and his foot, and uses small sprockets front and rear. In this way two pounds can sometimes be taken off a wheel, and the owner can go forth knowing that he is not carying useless weight Again, if a man is able to ride a 26-inch frame he contents himself with one whose perch-tube is 22 inches, saving weight here as well as securing more rigidity in the frame.

A tool bag seems the bete noir of many wheelmen. The article with its complement of tools is a necessity, yet few care to have the bag rattling over rough roads, though this can be stopped by wrapping the tools in cloth before putting them away in the bag.

Some have formed the habit of carrying the necessary repair tools in various pockets, but this is at times a source of annoyance, especially when the oil can leaks.

The seatpost is removed from the frame and a cork secured to fit the bottom end. Through this cork is passed one or more extra spokes. Stuck into the part of the cork inside the post is the little tool used to inject cement into the punctured tire. In the space above the cork in the seatpost is also room for a tube of cement and a few plugs of various sizes.

The only tool that need be carried in the pocket is the spanner or wrench. To remove the seatpost with its contents is but the work of a moment, and the tools are at your service. This way of carrying the tools does away with the unsightly bag and prevent the usual wearing away of the enamel by the supporting straps of the tool bag.

Many riders chew gum to keep the mouth and throat moist. This serves the purpose admirably, but to the racing man gum has a far more important duty. To make the case plain, suppose you were to ride with your mouth closed tightly and breathe only through your nose. You would soon find yourself out of breath, because in the extra exertion of riding the lungs require more air than can be obtained through the nose alone. Take the other extreme—were you to ride with your mouth wide open the result would be similar. You would find yourself choking. There is a happy medium when just enough air is taken in the lungs for the required exertion.

When a rider is in the best of condition he can do with very little extra air. For this reason he usually follows the plan made popular by Jimmy Michael and breathes through a quill toothpick. Now here is where the use of chewing gum comes in. In the beginning of the season the rider uses a "cud" about the size of a hickory nut. In the course of masticating this his mouth opens sufficiently to give him the air he needs. As his physical condition becomes better he can get along with less air, and he decreases the size of his gum accordingly, so that by the middle of the season he is content with a piece hardly bigger than a pea.

The toe clips in general use fall somewhat short of the ideal one. The foot quite frequently becomes disingaged, especially when high speed is indulged in. On the track this difficulty is overcome by using an extra attachment composed of rubber, and which is buttoned over the pedal, ordinary clip and foot. As this cannot be attached by the rider when on the wheel, but must be attended to by his starter, its use on the road is out of the question. This band clamps the foot so tightly that it is next to impossible to withdraw the foot from the pedal, and it is only another of the risks cyclists take on the track. Every rider should emulate the racing men and enjoy a rubdown after a ride. It serves to keep the muscles pliable and less liable to become cramped and stiff. Either witchhazel or alcohol may be used.

Living and Wages.

Even though the bottom falls out of the stock market, the cost of living—of provisions and wearing apparel—still goes up. Outside of one or two articles where the price is pretty steadily maintained by competition between trusts, the cost of living continues to advance. Taking the average of household expenditures a year ago, and comparing it with similar items to-day, the cost of living seems to have advanced about 15 per cent. It is hard to state any figures exactly, because some families use more of one class of food products than their neighbors, and also because rent has advanced very greatly in some sections, while it has been almost at a standstill in some other places. The estimate of 15 per cent., however, will probably be found close to the average increase in the cost of living in this section. This fact should be borne in mind as at least a partial explanation of the necessity for certain increases in wages in the past two months.

This increased cost of living is due to the wholesaler and manufacturer rather than to the retailer. Wages in the cotton mills, for illustration, have been raised in many cases 10 per cent., while the wholesale cost of thread has been raised nearly 40 per cent. The price of cotton is higher, but not so much as to make this raise in product together with the rise in wages justifiable.

Corn Stalk Pith.

Nearly every one is now aware that the pith found inside of cornstalks is now used as a sort of cork lining for warships to keep them from sinking. Corn pith has also made another contribution to the warfare besides being an inside lining or life preserver for warships. One of the best varieties of smokeless powder is made with the cornstalk as its basis. It is ground up and used as an absorbent base, just as infusorial earth is employed to make dynamite by absorbing the nitroglycerine.

It can be used in firearms of all sizes, and is especially adapted to the use of the big guns on battleships. When made into powder it does not flash up, like the ordinary black powder, and burn everything in sight. It can be made into sticks like a lead pencil, which, when lighted, burn like a candle, instead of exploding.

This slow-burning feature is valuable. The muzzle velocity is just the same, but there is not the same explosive element about it. Another advantage that is noted is that there are not the headaches resultant from the use of the nitrogenous powders. The gases liberated do not seem to be so noxious, as the chemical combination with the corn does not produce such poisonous vapors.

Lately the Agricultural Department at Washington has been experimenting with a new food for cattle, manufactured from the cornstalk. The whole stalk, pith and all, is ground up till it is as fine as flour. It is then mixed with blood, or a low grade of molasses. Perhaps an explanation is necessary concerning the use of blood. It is only employed where it can be obtained in large quantities, as around slaughter houses, and then only the lowest grade is used, for even blood has become valuable in this commercial age. As a usual thing, it is used in conjunction with a low grade of molasses, which is too poor to have a marketable value by itself.

This mixture of corn stalk, blood and molasses is then made into cakes under heavy pressure, and the product is allowed to dry. It becomes hard as bricks, and is then shipped out in ton lots. In feeding it out the cakes are broken with a hammer and placed in water, when they swell and become soft. It is an excellent food and cattle thrive on it to a remarkable extent A careful anaylsis has established its theoretical nutritive value, but the best proof is always fat, sleek cattle, and these are found wherever the compound is used.

THE SPIRIT WARNED HIM.

So He Would Not Testify for Ten Thousand Dollars.

A QUEER CASE IN COURT.

What Caused Dr. Houghton to Change His Tesimony—Honest Though Poor—He Listened to the Voice of Reason and Was Saved.

Dr. Arthur Houghton, who testified in Judge Batten's court in Chicago recently, that he had first accepted and then refused an offer of $10,000 to give false testimony in the Fulton will case, was led to his stand for honesty he says, by a warning which he received from the spirit world.

This is his account of his experence as he gave it at his home: "I was attending the theatre one night several weeks ago when I was taken with a severe attack of a sickness from which I often suffer. On my way home in the street car I felt worse again, when suddenly a spirit with whom I have often been in communication, and whom I know as Dr. Browne, appeared before me.

"This spirit told me plainly and clearly that if I did the act which I was contemplating and agreed to testify that Mrs. Fulton was not mentally competent when she signed her will, although I knew her to have been perfectly sane, I would die.

"He told me that by that act I would have passed the climax of my earthly life, and that no progress after it would be possible to me. I heeded the warning, for I know it was right. The next morning I summoned the lawyers on both sides of the case to my house to hear my true statement of the facts as to Mrs. Fuller's condition. In court I told the Judge just what I had intended to do and what I ought to have done. Last night I went to bed happy though a poor man—much happier than I would have been had I accepted the money and sworn falsely."

Dr. Houghton is a Spiritualist, and for four years has had charge of the Church of the Spirit Communion. For two years he has been licensed as a physician in Illinois, and has practiced his profession regularly there.

Last August, while attending Mrs. Fulton, he was asked to sign her will. A few days later, he says, an attorney began to make suggestions to him that he join in committing Mrs. Fulton to a private asylum for the insane and administer her estate for the benefit of her half-brothers, but he says he would have nothing to do with the project. After her death, he says, the offer of a deed to her home at 5344 Jefferson avenue, or of $10,000 in lieu of it, was made to him if he would sign a detailed statement that she was mentally incompetent when she made her will in favor of distant relatives.

The Old, Old Story.

Two Englishmen who came to Chicago to negotiate for the purchase of a gold mine, have left for London, the victims of a "gold brick" game. Until the day they departed they believed a box in the vaults of the Merchants' Safety Deposit Company held $50,000 worth of gold, represented by six bars of bullion, deposited as security by R. G. Miller and William Schroeder, the owners of the mine, pending the outcome of the negotiations with the London men. The latter are Frederick Vigor and T. G. D. Drayton, capitalists and mining speculators. The mine in question is in Golden, Col., and was owned by Schroeder and Miller, so they represented to the Englishmen, whom they induced to come to Chicago to make the purchase. The "gold bricks" were placed in the hands of assayists upon an order of Judge Dunne. Miller and Shroeder have disappeared. It was the latter circumstance that prompted the London speculators to institute receivership proceedings for the recovery of the "security." The examination proved the fraud.

THE NEGRO.

An old negro was recentiy heard bemoaning the alleged fact that the white folks were against him. He said that his race had been faithful slaves. Their ancestors had for many generations worked for the white man. He knew his place, he said, and it hurt him to think that the white man was against him now. It sounded very pathetic to hear the old fellow talk thus. Doubly so because what he said was not true, although we admit that he had ample grounds for thinking so, ample to him only because he misunderstood the situation, for at that very time he was talking in the presence of white Radicals who were interested in deceiving him—the only white men in the South who have ever been and still are his enemies, the worst because they betray him with a Judas kiss.

The white men of the South are not the negro's enemies. They are his only friends, thrice so because they frankly tell him the truth and declare to him their intentions. We have said that we deplore the apparent hard feeling that this and all similar campaigns develop. The thinking white men universally deplore it, but it is inseparable from the campaign. The white man in the South is the superior race, and will ever be. They frankly tell the negro this and equally frankly tell him that for the good of both races he must keep his place. There is no sort of way by which he can dominate the white race and his every attempt will not only be futile but disastrous—most disastrous to him. The white men know this and they propose to remove as far as possible the temptation and stimulus to him to try it. As long as there is an apparent chance there will be enough white men who, for their own selfish purposes, will urge him to try. We will therefore remove as far as possible the temptation. That the amendment will do this is the firm conviction of thinking white men. It is not a measure designed to hurt the negro, but to serve his best interests as well as our own. It may appear harsh to him now. We can excuse him for thinking so, but in years to come he will see it has been to him an immeasurable benefit instead of an injury. The negro is docile; he is a good laborer; he is the best servant on earth, but he is not a ruler of men, because he cannot first rule himself. He is useful to the white man. The white man is useful to him. But the two races are complements of each other in the social fabric, and each must stay in his place. With each in his place we will have peace, harmony and prosperity; with either out of it, discord, crime and anarchy. We must choose between the two. Can there be any reasonable question of how each race should choose?

If there had been any doubt before about carrying the amendment, the completion of registration sets it aside. Strenuous efforts were made by white supremacy advocates to get all believers in that doctrine to register, knowing that in their failure to do so, just now, more than anything else, lay the danger. From the reports we have received so far, the full white man's strength was brought out.

Stories have been afloat to the effect that J. P. Morgan & Co. have secured a majority of stock of the Seaboard Air Line, and hence that this dashing new contribution to Southern progress would be controlled by the same company that owns the Southern. President Williams of the Seaboard has emphatically denied this, and reassuringly states that such a thing is impossible for at least ten years if ever, as the entire capital stock of the Seaboard has been deposited in a voting trust which has ten years to run. And he further adds, that it would be easier for the Seaboard to buy the Southern than for the latter to buy the Seaboard. This sounds a little stiff, but Mr. Williams is a stiff young man. We hope never to see either of these great systems buy the other. Their independence as separate and competitive lines is a thing of great inportance to the South

We have a red hot and still a-heating communication against the dispensary, which we will be glad to publish if the writer will send along his name. We have made a ruling, and published it, that dispensary articles, pro and con, must be signed.

Isn't Mr. Tracy, of Texas, spoken of in our Raleigh special, one of the gentlemen who, about ten years ago, were in North Carolina lecturing to our noble non-partisan order and telling it how to depopulate the towns by ruining the merchants?

It was, we think, the Concord Standard, which, adverting to the boast that if Mr. Bryan is elected he will be his "own man," asks if Democrats have so far forgotton Mr. Cleveland's administration as to think that is what they want.

Tomorrow, in the persons of Maj. Chas. M. Stedman and Gen. Matt W. Ransom, Guilford folk will hear from the same platform—the first introducing the second—two of North Carolina's most cultured, chivalrous and distinguished citizens.

Massachusetts is going after the bloated capitalists, too. William K. Vanderbilt was arrested and fined $15, Friday, for shying his automobile too fast through Milton, while on his flying trip from Newport to Boston.

If there has ever been any doubt whatever of the ultra fashionableness of appendicitis, it is all now set aside by the fact that Mrs. Perry Belmont has just been operated upon for that disease.

It will remain for the British and American claimants to arrange for an equitable distribution of the fund, and negotiations to that end are under way with promise of success.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

ROOMS OF THE MERCHANTS AND MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION,
GREENSBORO JULY 21st,

At a special meeting of the Association, held this day, the following proceedings were had: Mr. W. R. Land announced the death of Mr. Charles B. Saxton and moved the appointment of a committee to draft suitable resolutions. The president appointed Messrs. W. R. Land, John Gray Bynum and Lewis C. Howlett, who reported the following, which were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, we have heard with profound regret of the death of Mr. Charles B. Saxton, the first member of our association to die since our organization four years ago. Mr. Saxton was the only child of Mr. E. R. Saxton, of Buffalo, New York, in which city he was born May 30th, 1871. He cast in his lot with us in Greensboro in March, 1899, and began manufacturing shuttles, in which business he was engaged when stricken with typhoid fever, which caused his death on the morning of July 20th, 1900. Mr. Saxton was a gentleman of unusually pure moral character, quiet and reserved in his deportment, as gentle as a woman in his manners, of the strictest integrity and a man of fine business capacity.

Therefore, be it resolved by this association:

1. "That in the death of Charles B. Saxton our association has lost one of its best members, one who was loved and respected by all of us, who sadly mourn his loss.

2. "That the people of our city and State have lost a valuable citizen and a good man.

3. "That the members of this association extend to his bereaved father their tenderest sympathy in this, the dark hour of his grief, and assure him of their sincere sorrow in his loss.

4. "That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of the association; that copies be sent to the Daily Record and Greensboro Telegram and the Buffalo papers with the request to publish, and that a copy be sent to his father in Buffalo, New York.

"W. R. LAND,
"JOHN GRAY BYNUM,
"LEWIS C. HOWLETT."

SERIOUS SITUATION IN NORTH CHINA

Russia Will Probably Not be Able to Bear an Adequate Share in the Tien-Tsin-Pekin Campaign in View of the Altered Circumstances.

From the Associated Press Report.

Berlin, July 21.—The Chinese situation takes on a radically different shape from news which reached here from Russia. What Europe hitherto knew about the troubles in Manchuria was what the Russian government chose to let pass. Now a number of reports, some of them official, but a majority private, have reached here from St. Petersburg, which tally in the main, and paint the situation in Chinese Manchuria and along the 1,500 kilos of borderland, on the Siberian side of which the Amur river forms a frontier, as much more dangerous for Russia than has hitherto been supposed. The Associated Press corrspondent has obtained here a partial and cautious confirmation of the above statement. A military contributor to The Tageblatt, says official Russian news showed that Chinese regular troops, aided by irregulars, in all numbering about 120,000, are in open war against Russia. They not only demand the withdrawal of the Russians from Chinese territory, but after the Russian refusal to withdraw, the Chinese assumed the offensive and drove off the Russians from railroad construction and are undertaking hostile operations against Harbin, Blagovestchensk and other towns, shelling the last named place. What makes the Chiness hostilites extremely dangerous, however, is the fact that the Chinese, by a series of recently-constructed forts and redoubts, absolutely command the navigation of the Amur river for a distance of 20 versts, thus preventing Russian troop transports on the only route open, at least until this fortifications shall have been taken by the Russians.

All agree that the Russian government now considers that Russia is actually at war with China; that the shilly-shally policy hitherto maintained will be dropped, that Russia is now hurriedly preparing for a serious campaign in north China separate from the other powers and that Russia will not be able nor willing, under these alerted circumstances to bear an adequate share in the Tien-Tsin-Pekin campaign.

The Russian forces available along the border and throughout north China are stated to compromise 26 battalions of the line, 27 battalions of reserves, 17 Cossack regiments and 17 field batteries, altogether about 78,000 men.

AGUINALDO STILL IN BUSINESS.

The Capture of Documents Reveals a Plot Against the Authorities in Manila.

The Secretary of War has been furnished with copies of some interesting documents relating to the alleged plot against the authorities in Manila, which was discovered in the district of San Miguel. The secret service department, under Lieutenant Charles Trowbridge, Eleventh Cavalry, early in June stumbled upon an insurgent recruiting office situated in an isolated locality where the work might be carried on without attracting notice. One room of the house was fitted up as an office and a large quantity of blank forms bearing the head line, "Republica Filipinos," were found in a cupboard, which had been securely fastened. Trowbridge and his men discovered a large quantity of papers, all of recent date, the latest being June 7th. They consisted of orders from Aguinaldo and letters of encouragement and instruction from the leaders and other insurgent chiefs. A document which excited a great deal of interest was one which contained the details of a plot arranged evidently early in June to excite an uprising in Manila. The plan contemplated an attack upon the force in the city and the seizure of arms and amunition.

THACKER & BROCKMANN.

FOR BEGINNERS IN GOLF.

The Equipment for a Most Popular Pastime.

A FASCINATING SPORT.

The Rules and the Tools as Explained by an Expert—Cost of the Outfit—The Costume and Other Important Points.

There is not a sport known to the American public which has come to the front so rapidly and taken such a firm footing in all parts of the United States as the game of golf. It is one of the simplest and at the same time most fascinating sports upon the face of the earth, although it has for centuries been played most exclusively by the Scotch people.

The American public have only been playing the game for a few years, and it is only within the past five years that it has sprung into its present popularity.

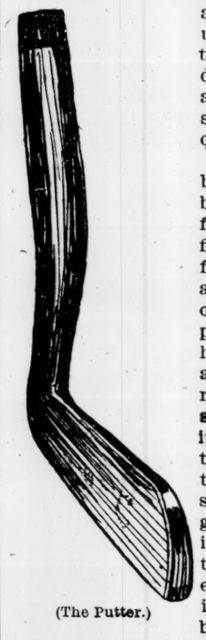
Golf, it may be said, is still in its infancy, although there are from eight hundred to a thousand golf clubs in this country and over two thousand courses, including those maintained by hotels, schools and private individuals.

The game affords most exhilarating exercise, and the time is not far distant when the workingman will be able to enjoy the sport fully as well as the millionaires.

Such is the case in Scotland, where many of the links are public property, and even in this country it is simply a case of the people learning the game, as links will be provided for them just the same same as beautiful parks are provided for the public.

The first thing necessary is to purchase a good set of clubs. The selecting of the clubs is rather an important matter, and in order to prevent getting a set of clubs made up of odds and ends, a beginner had better get a professional or an experienced amateur to do the selecting.

In selecting a set of clubs those most used by a beginner are a driver, a brasey, cleek, midiron, mashie and putter. The niblick is a club that nearly every golfer carries in his bag, but seldom has any occasion to use. It is a club the beginner can dispense with, as a mashie will answer the purpose quite as well.



(The Putter.)

My advice to a beginner would be to make an effort to take the first few lessons from a professional instructor, in order to learn the proper style of holding the club, and then the correct manner of swinging a club in order to obtain the follow through, which is so essential in the game of golf. It is also necessary to learn the proper way to stand in addressing the ball.

These rudimentary points are of vital importance to the beginner, who will realize the advantage of them in after years, and it is ten times as hard to break yourself of a bad habit as it is to fall into it on the start.

Brute strength is not necessary in playing the game of golf, which is almost purely a game of knack. One has to depend more upon the swing and letting the club do the work than in attempting to force the club to do its duty.

Accuracy is the chief feature in golf, and it is far better for a beginner to strike easy at a ball and make sure of hitting it than it is to endeavor to see how hard it can be hit.

A player must keep his eye on the ball to obtain accuracy, and this can only be done by using the greatest precaution. One has to learn to strike the ball easy and very deliberately at first, and as he becomes more accustomed to it and gains more confidence in himself he will find that he is naturally gaining greater distance in his drives without realizing that he is unconsciously putting more force in the stroke without the perceptible effort of additional strength being used. It seems to come to a person slowly, but surely.

Forcing a club to do its work is what is called "pressing," the most disastrous habit a golf player can fall into, and one, unless curbed, will not only prove demoralizing for the time being, but will eventually ruin his game.

These are a few points necessary for one desirious of learning the game to have thoroughly instilled in his memory before taking his first practical lesson.

While golf is a more or less expensive game an outfit for a beginner should not be over $10. This will allow $2 for the driver, $1.50 for the brassey and $1 apiece for the cleek, midiron, mashie and putter, making $7.50, which leaves $2.50 to invest in a caddy bag.

It is really not necessary to purchase a golfing costume, as any old, loose-fitting garments, which will give perfect freedom to the arms and shoulders, will answer.

The only other equipment necessary for the pleasure of the new aspirant are the balls. The balls will cost $4.50 per dozen, but I should advise the beginner to do his practice work with remade balls, which he can purchase from any professional club for 25 cents apiece.

The start is made from a space marked out and called the teeing ground, within the limits of which the ball must be teed.

Teeing consists of taking a pinch of sand and placing it upon the teeing ground in the shape of a pyramid, upon the top of which the ball is place, thus raising it from a quarter to a half an inch, as the case may require.

Having reached this point the important features are to take a good stand and a proper grip on the shaft in addressing the ball, as above all things a good style should be cultivated.

(Addressing the ball.)

The player must take a firm grip upon the club near the end of the shaft with his left hand in such a manner that the palm of his hand s against the side of the shaft instead of directly underneath. The back of the hand or knuckles will point in the direction in which the ball is to be driven, while the "V" formed by the thumb and first finger will point right straight down the shaft. The right hand is gripped immediately below and close up to the left hand, with the "V" already described likewise pointing down the shaft.

After the grip is satisfactorily arranged the next thing to be done is to address the ball. The club should be solid just behind the ball, and thus your stand should be taken just to the lee of the club.

The ball should be almost in a direct line with the left foot. Ball, club, shaft and hands and eye should be on about the same vertical plane, with the club resting at exactly right angles with the ball's intended direction of flight The right foot should be slightly advanced toward the ball by at least an inch and a half or two inches. This will give the player the advantage of a good follow through which he could not obtain if his feet were on a perfectly straight line.

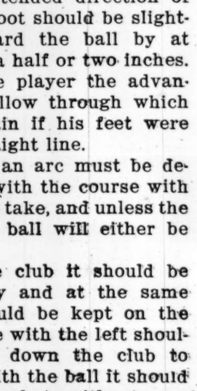
In a full swing an arc must be described on a line with the course with which the ball is to take, and unless the is a true arc the ball will either be pulled or sliced.

In swinging the club it should be taken back slowly and at the same time the eye should be kept on the ball in a direct line with the left shoulder. In bringing down the club to come in contact with the ball it should be swung swiftly, but without any great power, and the club must continue on through after hitting the ball until the eye is directly over the right shoulder. The head is kept almost perfectly still, while the shoulders move with the flight of the club, which forms almost a complete circle.

The eye should not be taken off the ball while any portion of the stroke is in progress. In the backward motion the weight is all upon the right foot, and as the body turns gently the left heel raises from the ground and the player finds himself balancing slightly on the left toe, while the downward swing brings about the reverse condition, the weight of the body being transferred to the left foot, and as the club follows through after coming in contact with the ball, the player finds his right heel has raised from the ground and he is merely balancing with his right toe on the ground. The same stroke is used in brassey and cleek shots.

Putting power in the downward stroke is what is called pressing, which is the worst habit a beginner could get into, and a thing which has caused the defeat of many expert golfers.

While driving is the most important feature in the game of golf, nearly every player has a style of his own. It is perfectly natural for a person when addressing a ball, preparatory to driving, to stand in such a position as will give him the most freedom, where he can steady himself regardless of the position of his feet and deliver the stroke without the slightest strain. Opinions differ widely as to the question of how to stand when addressing the ball preparatory to driving. The general attitude is the same, but the very apparent and important variations are attributable to physical differences and personal idiosyncrasies. The main thing is to achieve the desired result, and when that is accomplished it is perfectly immaterial how you stand, no matter whether your left foot or right foot is in front or both on the same line.



(Beginning of the cleek shot.)

HIS LARIAT SAVED HER.

Pleasing Story of a Cowboy's Prowess and Presence of Mind.

Among the tales of the recent round-up of catle west of the Missouri river up of cattle west of the Missouri river that have drifted into the border towns is one with a flavor of romance.

When the cattle men had cleaned up the reservation and closed the Cheyenne, the camp was visited one evening by a party from a neighboring ranch, one of whom was a charming young girl from the East, Miss Lillie Dole. She was delighted at the novelty of the scenes at camp, and readily

They were nearing the bluffs when suddenly a black steer rushed out from a clump of bushes. The horse which the young lady rode took fright, became unmanageable and bounded away toward the river. Cavanaugh tried in vain to overtake her and grasp the rein of her horse. His horse's best efforts could not bring him near enough to accomplish the feat. As the two horses rushed up the bluff a sheer precipice fringed with tree-tops appeared a few rods ahead. It looked as if horse and rider were doomed, but Cavanaugh, who had anticipated the danger, suddenly reined in his horse and swung his rope lariat about his head and sent it coiling in the air.

The loop fell about the shoulders of the frightened girl. The cowboy's horse reared back, the rope tightened and the girl was lifted from the saddle and drawn to the heavily tufted prairie sod. The girl, half unconscious, was borne back to camp by her cavalier, who was prouder of his exploit than the cowboy who beat the steer-roping record last year. The riderless horse plunged over the precipice and was killed.

An Air Steamer.

The airship of Count Zeppelin, a Lieutenant General in the German army, now on trial beside the Bodensee in Wurtemberg, is a veritable aerial steamer. It consists of a lattice work of aluminium 450 feet long, are divided into partitions, each holding a gas bag. The whole is covered with waterproof silk, and makes a cylinder 37 feet in diameter, with oglivale ends like a conical bullet. A gallery and two cars of aluminium beneath add stiffness to the machine. It is housed in a floating shed on the Bodensee.

The Latest Poem.

Here is the latest in rhyme, and it is wafted on the bracing air from Texas:

"When dad has worn his trousers out, they pass to brother John, then mother trims them round about and William puts them on. When William's legs too long have grown, the trousers fail to hide 'em, so Walter claims them for his own, and hides himself inside 'em. Next Sam's fat legs they close invest, and when they won't stretch tighter, they're turned and shortened up for me—the writer. Ma works them into caps and rugs, when I have burst the stitches; at doomsday we shall see perhaps, the [illegible] old breeches."

The origin of the saying "as clean as a whistle" is ascribed as the "whistle tankard" of olden times, in which the whistle came into play when the tankard was emptied, or "cleared out," to announce to the waiter that more liquor was required.

NEW TRICKS IN CRIME.

The Latest Ingenious Devices of Female Shoplifters.

The ever active minds of that troublesome class of people who live by stealing have evolved clever novelties in the way of mechanical assistants for the coming summer campaign.

The sharp-eyed detectives employed by all the big stores make it their business to familiarize themselves with all the contrivances that shoplifters may bring into play. As a result of this espionage professional shoplifters have found it necessary to discard all the old-fashioned implements that they found so useful in the past.

"The time has gone by when a crook can come in here," said a clever store detective, "and load up a shoplifter's apron with goods and walk out undetected."

The umbrella trick performed by dropping small articles of the counter into the half-opened umbrella has had its day. The hiding of stolen things in a bag formed by sewing up the bottom of a baby's clothes, and even the concealing of valuables by hanging them on little hooks attached to the shoplifter's garters have become too familiar to be further serviceable.

"Not only every year, but every season," said the detective, "we have to be on the alert for new tricks. The spring usually brings out the most ingenious of these, and scarcely a day passes but we learn a new wrinkle about shoplifters and their ways."

Among the very latest and most popular designs in shoplifters' wares is the false-bottomed shopping-bag.

In outward appearance the bag differs in no way from the regulation affair, and as every shopper carries one of the same kind no suspicion was attached to it until a clever operator was caught the other day with one in her possession.

The method of storing away stolen articles in the bag is very simple.

The bottom of the contrivance is composed of two flaps of stiff leather, working on little hinges and opening in the middle like a pair of swinging doors. These are fitted neatly together, and are held down flat by a stiff steel spring.

The shoplifter sits in front of the counter and, holding the handle of the bag, lets it lie in her lap, with the bottom toward the counter.

The fact that the bag is clasped shut at the mouth throws off suspicion, and when the clerk's back is turned the operator rapidly draws toward her the articles she wants to steal and shoves it in the little doors that form the false bottom.

It is clamed that phosphate of ammonia mixed with starch used in the laundry will render the fabric treated with it comparatively fireproof..

The Cats Were Chums.

When Pete got lost Dick mourned as never a cat mourned before; now Dick is lost and Pete is inconsolable—and yet the two chums are only cats.

Both are beautiful. Dick has fiercer yellow stripes than the Tammany tiger; Pete is dark gray, with stripes. Both are Angoras. A year ago Pete turned up missing. Dick wouldn't take a drop of milk, but moped around the house till one day Pete was found again, very thin and minus his magnificent whiskers.

Well, one day Dick disappeared. The last seen of him he was climbing out of the window on the stone sill. That night the cat was missed. Pete noticed it first and told his story by plaintive wails and scratching at his mistress's gown.

All night long he waited by the window, but no chum cat came back. The next day he waited, whining and refusing food. Yesterday he was on the sill, waiting still. A saucer of milk, cajolery, sharp words—not one would bring Peter off the sill, and there he sat last night waiting patiently for his chum.

And yet people say dumb beasts

President McKinley has granted a pardon to Charles A. Pachin, convicted in New York on May 29, 1896, of having counterfeit tools in his possession, and sentenced to six years in prison at Rochester.

Owing to the large number of deaths caused by enteric fever in South Africa the British War Office is now ncluding finnel belts in the outfit of every man going out. They are excellent safeguards against the disease.

Perishable stock has all been closed and C. W. Jennings takes a few days recreation with Virginia friends, and the Northern markets will be visited before his return and he hopes to be able to supply the trade in future more abundantly than ever before. Mr. Jehnings returns thanks to his customers, which are many, and has been from day to day since he located in Greensboro.
